Witch Miss Seeton (A Miss Seeton Mystery Book 3)

Synopsis

A sudden interest in the occult swept through the English village of Plummergen, with Ouija boards replacing the best china in many a cozy cottage. It might be quite the thing for maiden ladies and persnickity aunts, but it wasn't Miss Seeton's cup of tea . . . until Scotland Yard requested she go undercover to investigate some sinister shenanigans in the Kentish countryside. A flim-flam was afoot in the local witches coven . . . and magic could be a prelude to murder most foul. Serene amidst every kind of skullduggery, retired art teacher Miss Seeton steps in where Scotland Yard stumbles. Armed with nothing more than her sketchpad and umbrella, she is at every turn the most lovable and unlikely master of detection.

Set around the time where the love ins were giving way to new age mystical and forays into the occult. A cow is found butchered while still alive near the sleepy village of Plummergen. The same village where Miss Seeton has moved to permanently following her retirement as art teacher at a prestigious prep school. Amid offers of a teaching position and a head mistress post. Scotland Yard has once again come to the umbrella carrying plucky older woman for help in questionable crimes with signs of black magic, a con game being pulled on a local witch's coven, and acts of vandalism. Asking her to go undercover to look for answers. They hope with her special talents she will be able to find what this sudden spurt of swindling and con jobs is all about. With umbrella at the ready Miss Seeton Wades in where angels would fear to tread. This is the third book in the series and although some explanation of previous events are made some are not. It is recommend you read the series in order to better understand the progression of Miss Seeton's involvement with the constabulary and Scotland Yard. In many ways Miss Seeton reminds me of an English version of Jessica Fletcher. No one ever sees her as a threat, but as a teacher she has earned to control the most unruly of students and how to coax them to give their best effort.
